important notes

Undergraduate Catalog: Students are responsible for understanding all degree requirements as outlined in their undergraduate catalog. | ArtV courses: ArtV courses are offered in either fall or spring as shown (except ArtV 496). | Upper-Division Requirement: 45 credits of courses numbering 300-level or above are required of all NKU undergraduates; many of these are accounted for in the BFA Visual Communication Design major requirements. The credits can come from major, minor, area of concentration and/or elective courses. Any general studies or elective choices numbering 300-level or above would defray the number of upper-division electives outlined above.

What is the difference between a BA / BFA in visual communication design?

A BFA degree is a professional degree offering the opportunity to develop depth and specialization in a creative art practice. Conversely, a BA degree is a general studies degree offering breadth of understanding through exposure to an area of artistic activity; a minor or area of concentration outside the major is required for a BA to help achieve this. The degrees vary slightly in total number of credits required (BA: 121 credits; BFA: 122 credits); the main difference is in the make-up of the requirements.

The BFA degree is preferred by the profession, the AIGA (the American Institute for Graphic Arts — the largest professional association of visual communication designers), and the accrediting agency NASAD (the National Association of Schools of Art and Design). The Visual Communication Design BFA degree at Northern Kentucky University offers a deep, comprehensive scope of study and a competitive advantage in portfolio development. The degree carries a level of distinction, and as such, has requirements for eligibility and elevated standards for completion. A student interested in obtaining the BFA must have a cumulative, overall GPA of 2.5 and a 3.0 GPA average in the major to be eligible. Students apply the BFA program in the junior year of design studies by registering for ART 299 Portfolio Review. Students must maintain these GPA minimums until graduation to obtain a BFA.

What is the most appropriate minor for a design major?

While many visual communication design students minor in marketing because of its connection to branding and advertising, there is no minor in particular that is expected by the profession. A student interested in a minor should choose a subject that they personally feel is interesting and stimulating. Some suggested minors for a Visual Communication Designer major: Anthropology, English, Entrepreneurship, Geography, Marketing, Media Informatics, Philosophy, Popular Culture Studies, and Women's Studies.

What paperwork do I need to complete in order to graduate?

When a student anticipates graduation, they must file an "Application for Degree Candidacy" form and a "Program Certification" form through the Registrar approximately half-way through the semester before they intend to graduate (refer to the Registrar for specific deadlines). Your major advisor must review and sign the Program Certification form prior to the Registrar's graduation application deadline. Consult your catalog and the Registrar for additional details.

What about a career in illustration?

Sometimes students who want to work in the design industry discover that they prefer or accelarate in drawing or painting compared to design. These students should consider a career in illustration. Illustration is closely associated with the design industry because illustrators, like some photographers, are commissioned to create artwork for commercial projects coordinated by graphic designers. Drawing, painting, intermedia, printmaking and new media art, among others, are good areas of study for this field of practice.
